CROCKETT & CARLES.—One sharp lesson of the autumn's panic, and indeed, of our shifting American fortunes without any panic at all, is that wasteful folly and cruelty of the old education of woman. Take folly, in an economic sense, that ignores the sharp possibilities of the future for our girls, while we send our boys out into life, fully armed and equipped for the fray.

The young man, returned from college or the scientific school, in the bright glow of dawning powers, untrammeled as yet by care and under the shelter of his father's roof, decides upon his career. Admiring aunts and cousins wait their prayers and hopes upon the winds that wing his sail; the father's experience and counsel pilot the boat through the shallow waters near the shore. Every thing aids his start—youth, freshness, and special training. He has no responsibility upon him save for his own health and good behavior.

When does a woman choose her career? In middle age; broken down by sorrow; when she has seen her life's hopes go down one by one in the horizon. As a girl, she has waited on her father's house for the lover who never came! All of youth has gone by in vague dreams. In the frivolous business of fashionable society her strength has spent itself.

Her hands are still-less sure in delicate embroidery; her brain is sluggish, though it aches with new anxiety and despair. Heavily weighted with responsibility, it may be with the broken-down father or the always invalid mother now suddenly dependent upon her, she sets out upon this new path with weak, uncertain steps. Beginning a career at forty, all untrained!

The daughter of her washer-woman can distance her, the girl who used to bring home her shoes has already shot far ahead. She has not used to notice these facts, save when they were thinly clad or looking meagrer than usual. It was easy to loosen her purse-strings or send them into the servants' room to be warmed and fed. Where are they now, while she is lashing, unnerous, on the sharp seams of the high mast? The washer-woman's girl is a salaried teacher in the model school-house yonder, the other is book-keeper in her father's shop, and it pays her well.

Ah! that unjust father, that mother toiling early and late, had a deeper wisdom in their self-denial than the merchant, the clergyman, the railway king, in his hour of power. What cruelty like to their indulgence now? The unreasoning fondness which reared their girls in luxurious helplessness, which assumed the future as certain as the golden round, has its parallel in other lands. There are Asiatic fathers who put out the eyes of a girl that she might be a more pathetic beggar. To the study of this Chinese prototype we commend the American father, who, choosing a career for his son in the fine realms of early manhood, leaves his darling daughters helpless amidst the buffets of these ranging tide.—Harper's Magazine for July.

ECONOMY.—One of the brightest of our lady writers had a neat hit at the ostentatious economies advocated by some of our great and good men at Washington. She says that "those in the Ohio River, near Pittsburg, a prosperous town named Economy, occupied by a German community called 'Economites.' They neither marry, nor are given in marriage, yet are not religious zealots or ascetics. They have hard hands, hard faces, drive hard bargains, and believe in hard money. The member who saves, shaves, and skimps most is the best fellow and the chief saint," and these she compared to the Congressional "Economites" who arrest important public enterprises, and discharge faithful old public servants. There is no work so fitting and necessary that they will not dispute the cost, even after it is done by their own act, and can not be undone. They remind one of that well-to do but penurious Irish widow who had, on being apprised of the death of her husband in a distant city, telegraphed in the first flush of her grief and good feeling, to have the mortal remains of the dear departed embalmed and sent home. She bore up well till the undertaker's bill came to hand. Then her countenance fell, and when she reached the charge for embalming, she indignantly exclaimed, "Seventy five dollars for stewin' Dan!"

A NEW ADVERTISING DODGE.—The fa miliarity of the frontiers man, with scenes of shooting and executions by lynch law, and his coolness in the average Western affray, are proverbial. The last instance that has come to our knowledge in which enterprise and self possession were admirably mingled occurred at the recent execution of a criminal in Washington Territory. Just as he was about to be swung off, and after he had remarked to the sheriff that he had nothing further to say, a real estate agent, whose office was in his hat, forced himself to the front and up the steps of the scaffold, and jointly addressing the criminal and the sheriff, said, "If the gentleman who occupies the platform will kindly yield for a few minutes, I would like to make a few remarks upon the cheap homestead lots at Dobson's Hotel am now offering for sale." The polite request was acceded to, and after a brief summary of the advantages presented by that locality the sheriff resumed his duties, pulled the cap over the "gentleman's" countenance, and permitted him to drop.

A great sensation has been caused in Brussels by the fatal termination of a duel. Recently the Echevin of Public Instruction, who was a married man, eloped with a young lady to whom he was a teacher at one of the public schools. He resigned his place, and was challenged by the brother of the young lady. The challenge was accepted, and the duel was fought, the result being that the brother of the young lady received a severe wound, from the effects of which he died. The injurer emerged triumphant from the ordeal, the challenger, who was the wronged man and the representative of outraged mortality and betrayed innocence, was mortally wounded for his pains, and died immediately afterwards. The Belgians are lamenting that the laws of honor were so out of harmony with the laws of natural justice, and probably, the end of it will be to make the practice of duelling as repulsive to men of sense as it is now elsewhere

A London letter to the California News Letter tells a pathetic story of two California poets stranded in London, where they are patiently awaiting remittances to enable them to pursue their travels. They are occupying conjointly a $12 per month room in the Strand City, and subsisting for six days out of the seven on a diet of bread, coffee and macaroni, at an expense of thirty cents per day each. Joaquin Miller is one of them.

The teachers of Essex county, N. J., in convention assembled, have solemnly resolved the corporal punishment is of divine institution, and that no school in which flogging is dispensed with can be properly kept. One teacher alone was of a different mind, while forty-five registered themselves as flagellants.

Several negroes broke into a house in Lexington, Ky., last week, and with drawn pistols demanded of the landlady all the valuables in the house. She was compelled to obey, and after taking all she had the robbers were invited to lunch. They accepted the polite invitation and the lady went about preparing supper, and seasoned it heavily with poison she happened to have about the house. The thieves ate heartily, and were found dead on the premises next morning.

Well, here's chloroform administered under entirely new circumstances. A gentleman crossing the bridge at Eutonville, Montgomery county, N. Y., saw a six all boy struggling in the river below. Down went the philanthropist to the rescue, but the small boy struggled so that both were in danger of watery death. Just then the gentleman remembered that he had a bottle of chloroform in his pocket. To take it out and to administer the same effective to the struggling lad was the work of a moment, and then the unconscious form was towed safely to the shore.

Republican Nomination.

FOR GOVERNOR.

Hon. Nelson Dingley, Jr.,

OF LEWISTON.

MAINE REPUBLICANS

We have time only for a brief reference to the excellent work performed by the Republican delegates of Maine at Augusta, yesterday. It augurs well for the future of the party that so large an attendance was secured at this session and in the absence of any contest for the nomination, and we may safely say that the party has seldom, if ever, been represented by a more earnest or intelligent gathering of delegates. The members came together with a well defined purpose of taking a firmly grounded on the issues now demanding public attention, and a perusal of the platform will show that the Convention gave an uncertain sound as the voice of Maine Republicanism upon the great questions of public policy and national good faith.

The nomination of Governor Dingley was a merited recognition of able and faithful service and the unanimity with which it was made well illustrated the heartiness with which he will be supported at the polls in September.

The affirmative resolutions and the unanimous adoption of the old Republican Presidential Electors, a graceful compliment is paid to the old Republican President who has stood firm to the position by adopting the very words of Lincoln's memorandum as the first principle of the Republican party of Maine. Other States have often sounded the keynote of national public sentiment and for the most part been pitched to a truer tone or a new harmony than that which has been struck by the Maine Republicans yesterday.

In other features of the platform will be found a just commendation and we shall elect them more particularly hereafter. One of these specifications relates to the Civil Service reform and is as follows:

We believe that the maintenance of the principle of the Civil Service reform, which requires that appointments to office shall be made for the public good and not for party purposes, is essential to the preservation of our free institutions, and we demand that the laws relating to the Civil Service shall be faithfully executed.

This is a subject which is calculated to arouse the opposition of the salary grabbers in the party in the County Conventions of the State in the West. It runs as follows:

We believe that any increase of official emoluments, not actually earned by additional services, is a violation of the principles of a free government, and we demand that the salaries of all officers, whether State or National, shall be reduced to the standard established by the Constitution of the State, and that the fees of all officers, whether State or National, shall be paid into the public treasury.

This is a plain declaration of principle and we shall expect to see it carried out in the nominations for the Legislature. Let the salary grabbers be relegated to the rear and the party will be strengthened by the change.

The Democrats of Maine have made their nominations and the platform is a curiosity. It is a mixture of Greenbackism, Communism and Democracy, and is a fair sample of the incongruous elements of which the party is composed. The nomination of Mr. Connor is a good one, and he will receive the full vote of his party, but the platform will be repudiated with scorn by his Democratic constituents in primary elections. Congressman Lamison (Democrat) of Ohio is not so much as named for re-election. Both salary grabbers. On the other hand, Mr. Foster, Republican, who had nothing to do with salary grab, and who gave one General Butler a sound scoring, has the support not only of his own party, but of the opposition press in his district.

THE SECOND CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

GOVERNOR DINGLEY'S RENOMINATION—INDORSEMENT OF HON. W. P. FRYE—POPULARITY OF SENATOR HAMLIN.

LEWISTON, June 18th, 1874

To the Whig and Courier.

As yet there has been but very little political excitement in this part of the State. Our opponents are quietly waiting for "something to turn up, and are evidently ready to make almost any political shift that will bring them out of a hopeless minority. Outside of a few old, inveterate hunkers, almost any "new departure" that would tend to increase their party strength would be hailed with gladness

In the Republican party there is a strong and increasing sentiment in favor of retrenchment and a rigid economy in every department of government, both State and National That existing errors should be corrected in mode of the party, and not by breaking up an old organization on which has saved to us a country, is the general feeling. The administration of Governor Dingley, especially in its financial aspects, has been quite satisfactory and no doubt before this is in type he will have been unanimously renominated by the Convention at Augusta

To-morrow the Congressional Convention for the Second District will meet in Auburn, and the Hon Wm P Frye will be nominated by a clamor. So well satisfied are the Republicans of this District with the course of their able and popular Representative, there will be a unanimous feeling in favor of giving him a re-election for a third term.

The question of United States Senator begins to be quite freely discussed in political circles, and the friends of some of the candidates are moving actively in the canvass The friends of Mr Perham are making some stir, and the same may be said of the supporters of Messrs Washburn and Hamlin, but I am not mistaken when I say that among the rank and file in the Republican party there is a very strong feeling in favor of the re-election of Senator Hamlin. And this is not a sentiment worked up by politicians or office holders. The people know Mr. Hamlin, they know he is strictly honest, faithful and true, that he is ever mindful of their wants, and has the ability and influence to do for Maine what no new man can do. They know, too, that he is sound upon the currency question and all the other great questions of the day. In a word, they know him to be — true and tried man and all his personal and public relations

In view of these facts the people fail to see what is to be gained by changing an eminent statesman of his world wide reputation and influence for any new man so much less ability and experience, simply because these aspirants covet the position

This feeling is so general in this part of the state, that it is how quite certain that in the Second Congressional District, as a moderate estimate—if the voice of the people is heard—a very large majority of the delegates to the Legislature will be for Mr. Hamlin This is especially true of Oxford county, of which Mr H is a native, where the people have known him from boyhood, which county he has never failed to carry whenever a candidate for the suffrages Von Pofferi

The New Comet is to become in a few weeks one of the most splendid meteors ever witnessed It was first discovered on April 17 ultimo, by M. Coggia, at Marseilles, small, but having an intense nuclear condensation. Its polar distance was about 20 degrees, 15 minutes and 23 seconds, and it was moving slowly towards the southwest. It was first visible in the early morning, but is now also visible in the evening. It has been increasing in brightness, and, by a sharp and somewhat cracked eye, can be seen in the constellation Camelopard in right ascension about seven hours and declination about 70 degrees north. It is now receding from the sun and is diminishing in actual size and brightness, but as it is approaching nearer to us its brilliance is apparently augmented. This luminous meteor, which is named Comet II, of 1874, is wholly outside of the earth's orbit, but, as it moves on its fiery track, will on the 3d of August attain its maximum beauty and brightness for us. When first described by M Coggia its brightness was only one in the scale, now it is nearly seven, but after the 1st of July it will reach a much higher degree of luminosity, and on the 3d of August will have a brightness of two hundred and forty-five. These figures will afford the reader an idea of what an astronomic treat he may look forward to in August.

The Bunker Hill Monument Association held its annual meeting in Boston Wednesday, at which it was voted to invite Robert C. Winthrop to deliver the oration at the centennial anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill, June 17th, 1875. The President, Geo. W. Warren, in his annual report, said it had been thought best not to make any extended celebration this year, as the centennial anniversary next year would be an occasion of more importance. Hon. Carl Schurz and G. W. Curtis were made honorary members.

Dr. SCHENCK'S

Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills.

These medicines have undoubtedly performed more cures of Consumption than any other remedy known to the American public They are compounded of vegetable ingredients, and contain nothing which can be injurious to the human constitution.

Other remedies advertised as cures for Consumption, probably contain a mineral poison, which is a dangerous drug in all cases, and it taken freely by consumptive patients, it must do great injury, for its tendency is to break down the mucous membrane in the system, which, of course, must make a cure impossible.

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup is warranted not to contain a particle of opium It is composed of powerful but harmless herbs, which act on the lungs, liver, stomach and blood, and thus correct all material disorders, and expel all the diseased matter from the body. Where are the many cases by which Consumption can be cured, and Dr Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the only medicines which will do it. In this country it is obvious they are the only remedies sure for Pulmonary Consumption Each bottle of the invaluable medicine is accompanied by full directions.

Dr Schenck is professionally at his principal office, corner Sixth and Arch Streets, Philadelphia, every Monday, and at the Quincy House, Boston, on the following Wednesday, June 10th and 24th, July 8th and 22d, and August 5th and 19th.

Consultation free, but for advice and examination a fee of $5 is required, which is included in the price when medicines are purchased.

Dr. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills are sold by druggists everywhere.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION

A LARGE AND HARMONIOUS ASSEMBLAGE —GOVERNOR DINGLEY RENOMINATED BY ACCLAMATION—A SHORT, SHARP AND POINTED PLATFORM—A RINGING DECLARATION FOR SOUND CURRENCY.

AUGUSTA, June 18, 1874.

The Republican State Convention assembled in this town to-day, pursuant to the call for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor, and to transact such other business properly coming before it. Members of the State Committee arrived last evening to arrange the preliminaries, and were busily engaged in examining credentials of delegates until the hour for opening the Convention. Quite a number of delegates arrived on Wednesday evening, but the larger portion came in on this morning's trains, and at 10 o'clock a small attendance was anticipated. Owing to the lack of any contest for the nomination on the floor of Granite Hall was well filled before the appointed hour. It was noticed that among the delegates were a very large number of the prominent members from all parts of the State, and that all sections of the State were represented delegates being present from points most remote from the State capital. At precisely 11 o'clock the Convention was called to order by Stanley T. Pullen, Esq., of Augusta, who has very efficiently acted as Chairman of the State Committee in the absence of Hon. James G. Blaine.

On motion of Mr. Pullen, Hon. Edmund F. Webb of Waterville was chosen to preside over the temporary organization, and on rising he was greeted with hearty applause.

The following is the list of which he submitted for the Convention as follows:

OFFICERS OF THE CONVENTION.

President—Hon. E. F. Webb of Waterville.

Hubbard of Portland, Hon. Charles W. Walton of Rockland, Hon. Charles A. Boutelle of Bath, Hon. Charles A. Wheeler of Calais, Hon. Charles A. Eaton of Eastport, Hon. Charles Hamlin of Augusta, Hon. Frederick Robie of Gorham, Hon. Joseph W. Symonds of Saco, Hon. Sidney Perham of Paris, Hon. Charles Andrews of Bridgton, Hon. Charles Holmes of Boothbay, Hon. Charles Hale of Hallowell, Hon. Charles Hutchinson of Dover, Hon. Charles Hayden of Foxcroft, Hon. Charles Hamlin of Bangor, Hon. Charles Hamlin of Ellsworth.

Secretaries—Hon. Charles A. Boutelle of Bath, Hon. Charles Hamlin of Augusta, Hon. Charles Hamlin of Bangor, Hon. Charles Hamlin of Ellsworth.

Mr. Webb's address was listened to with marked attention and frequently interrupted by applause which was continued for some time after the close of his remarks.

The following gentlemen were designated as Secretaries: A. H. S. Davis, of Farmington, George E. Brackett, of Belfast; Geo. H. Blake, of Rockland, and W. K. Moody, of Skowhegan.

The organization was further completed by the selection of one Vice President for each county, as follows:

The Committee subsequently reported the several cities and towns entitled to 209 delegates, 201 of whom were present.

In response to loud calls, Hon. T. B. Reed, of Portland, came forward and addressed the Convention in a brief speech bristling with good points and full of sound doctrine. His remarks were eminently adapted to the occasion, and elicited a hearty response from the audience. We are unable to give but an imperfect sketch of a few points of his very excellent speech

He remarked that we had assembled to inaugurate measures to be discussed during the coming campaign, and believed that the great achievements of the Republican party imposed upon that party a duty to meet the questions of the present with equal courage and sincerity. Questions of finance are the legacy of the splendid decade which ended in 1861. The American people were honest when it was proved six years ago when all the leaders of the Democratic party and all the demagogues of our own were tempting us to repudiate the bonded debt of the nation. The temptation was met with pulse beats. Now the question is "whether we shall pay the notes issued during the war, or issue more and leave the future to pay more of them. There can be but one honest answer to that question, and the best statesmanship is that which gives utterance to this spontaneous reply.

He said he did not believe in an "elastic currency"—no more than in an elastic yardstick, which measures ten inches to-day and twelve to-morrow. What is needed is hard money,—a metallic currency, although it would not be a panacea for all evil. Those who talk about running the Government on paper money is absurd. The question is: Shall we do the honest thing or not? If we support the last resolution in the platform he has taken an ounce of the Democratic platform

They began in 1865, when the victorious Democracy received from the hands of the war closed Wings the administration of the national government, when Mr Pierce went into the White House and Jeff Davis began to organize, and it continued from 1857, when Mr Buchanan went into the Presidential chair with Mr Davis still controlling the policy of the Administration. But he ran aground, and was contaminated in 1860, when Mr Lincoln was elected President, for he was a Republican and the Democracy were taken to Babylon and there hung their harps upon the willows by the streams of Babylon, and lifted up their voices and wept.

For these long years they have mourned the loss of Federal offices and Federal power in which those were lost in the rebellion through the ballot, and believing that they held the right to rule and land by the sword, they attempted to destroy the country they had failed making, and in their frenzy and madness they hurled the armies of rebellion against the defenders of the Union—involved the country in a long and bloody war, characterized by hellish barbarism never equalled in the beginning of history, murdered 30,000 Union soldiers by starvation and cold, clamping them fire by winter and shelter by summer, burned cities and spread pestilence, filled the country with widows and orphans, carried on and resolved to a system of heartlessness, and assassinated the Chief Magistrate of the Republic. Yet, with this terrible record of blood and suffering, with all its marks of Cain upon them, they ask to be placed once more in power!

For twenty years the Democratic party has stood hostile to freedom and equal rights. It has borne the banners of slavery, won its victories and shared its crimes. Within that period of time there has not been one patriotic act in favor of humanity that has received the vote or sanction of that party.

They voted against the civil rights bill, the last three Amendments of the Constitution, they voted to make labor dishonorable in seventeen sovereign states of the country, they voted steadily for secession blocks and bloodhounds, for slave pens and chains, they voted to dissolve the Union, they voted men and money to carry on a terrible war against it, but they never voted men or money to save it. I know of no monarchy in Europe to-day so permanently and wickedly hostile to the rights of the oppressed as the Democratic party of this nation has been for the past score of years.

With such a record as this we should fear when the Republic was plunged down to the brink and it was thought to the four winds and being rent by foes within and without, if we were not unanimous, and if we did not improve the opportunity to do the most noble work, and if you take the Capitol, liberty loving men out of that party to-day there would not be the strength left in it to keep up a circulation. It is the only party in history that has tried to make treason glorious.

The Democracy have tried to do that. They had a President and members of Congress who lent their influence to it. Democratic Federal office-holders, North and South, asserted it, yea, a Democratic Supreme Court intrenched itself before the infamous doctrine, and Democrats proclaimed it from the floor of the American Senate.

When, in 1861, the Republican party wrested from the saddened and traitorous Democracy the control of the nation, it was in open war, without an army or a navy, and never in the history of nations has man been inspired by higher aims than fired the bosoms of those American patriots brought together by the necessities of their imperilled country. They were loyal in thought, in word and act, they were the Covenant Fathers of the Republic. The Republican party is made up of those men who came out of other parties to join one of freedom and humanity, which should make equal laws for all men without geographical discrimination, and it has in all times and in every struggle, in peace and in war, been on the side of the nation, of liberty and progressive civilization. It severed the chains from four and a half millions of God's children, breathed into their souls the spirit of manhood, lifted them from the depths of bondage and oppression into the glorious light of universal freedom, secured them civil and political rights by Constitutional covenants, and made slavery impossible in all the States and Territories—yes, everywhere under the flag of the Union while grass shall grow and water run. [Applause.]

In God's providence it has been the high privilege—and I believe the Republican party was created for that purpose—to raise the nation from the slough of despond in which the Democratic party had sunk it. By its means the American freedom may stand to-day upon the "sacred soil" of South Carolina, even by the tomb of Calhoun, and proclaim universal liberty to all men, be they white or black.

In a few weeks these two great parties will once more appeal to the voters of this State for support. Each will ask for control and power, and which shall have it? Will not those voters trust a party that has so often carried them safely over? After they have extinguished the flames of their burning house, will they place it in custody of the incendiary whose hand applied the torch? The voters of the State will stand by the Republican party. It is the symbol of liberty and patriotism. It has guarded the Nation in its past glorious career and God will grant it success in the future.

Mr Webb's address was listened to with marked attention and frequently interrupted by applause which was continued for some time after the close of his remarks

Those who talk about running the Government on paper money is absurd. The question is: Shall we do the honest thing or not? If we support the last resolution in the platform he has taken an ounce of the Democratic platform

They began in 1865, when the victorious Democracy received from the hands of the saddened and traitorous Democracy the control of the nation, it was in open war, without an army or a navy, and never in the history of nations has man been inspired by higher aims than fired the bosoms of those American patriots brought together by the necessities of their imperilled country They were loyal in thought, in word and act, they were the Covenant Fathers of the Republic The Republican party is made up of those men who came out of other parties to join one of freedom and humanity, which should make equal laws for all men without geographical discrimination, and it has in all times and in every struggle, in peace and in war, been on the side of the nation, of liberty and progressive civilization. It severed the chains from four and a half millions of God's children, breathed into their souls the spirit of manhood, lifted them from the depths of bondage and oppression into the glorious light of universal freedom, secured them civil and political rights by Constitutional covenants, and made slavery impossible in all the States and Territories—yes, everywhere under the flag of the Union while grass shall grow and water run. [Applause.]

In God's providence it has been the high privilege—and I believe the Republican party was created for that purpose—to raise the nation from the slough of despond in which the Democratic party had sunk it. By its means the American freedom may stand to-day upon the "sacred soil" of South Carolina, even by the tomb of Calhoun, and proclaim universal liberty to all men, be they white or black.

In a few weeks these two great parties will once more appeal to the voters of this State has come when this can be done or at least begun with less embarrassment to every branch of industry, than at any future time, after resort has been made to unstable and extinguished the flames of their burning house, will they place it in custody of the incendiary whose hand applied the torch? The voters of the State will stand by the Republican party. It is the symbol of liberty and patriotism. It has guarded the Nation in its past glorious career and God will grant it success in the future

Mr Webb's address was listened to with marked attention and frequently interrupted by applause which was continued for some time after the close of his remarks

The following gentlemen were designated as Secretaries; A. H. S. Davis, of Farmington, George E. Brackett, of Belfast; Geo. H. Blake, of Rockland, and W. K. Moody, of Skowhegan

The Committee subsequently reported the several cities and towns entitled to 209 delegates, 201 of whom were present.

In response to loud calls, Hon. T. B. Reed, of Portland, came forward and addressed the Convention in a brief speech bristling with good points and full of sound doctrine His remarks were eminently adapted to the occasion, and elicited a hearty response from the audience. We are unable to give but an imperfect sketch of a few points of his very excellent speech

He remarked that we had assembled to inaugurate measures to be discussed during the coming campaign, and believed that the great achievements of the Republican party imposed upon that party a duty to meet the questions of the present with equal courage and sincerity. Questions of finance are the legacy of the splendid decade which ended in 1861. The American people were honest when it was proved six years ago when all the leaders of the Democratic party and all the demagogues of our own were tempting us to repudiate the bonded debt of the nation. The temptation was met with pulse beats. Now the question is "whether we shall pay the notes issued during the war, or issue more and leave the future to pay more of them. There can be but one honest answer to that question, and the best statesmanship is that which gives utterance to this spontaneous reply

He said he did not believe in an "elastic currency"—no more than in an elastic yardstick, which measures ten inches to-day and twelve to-morrow What is needed is hard money,—a metallic currency, although it would not be a panacea for all evil. Those who talk about running the Government on paper money is absurd. The question is: Shall we do the honest thing or not? If we support the last resolution in the platform he has taken an ounce of the Democratic platform

They began in 1865, when the victorious Democracy received from the hands of the saddened and traitorous Democracy the control of the nation, it was in open war, without an army or a navy, and never in the history of nations has man been inspired by higher aims than fired the bosoms of those American patriots brought together by the necessities of their imperilled country They were loyal in thought, in word and act, they were the Covenant Fathers of the Republic The Republican party is made up of those men who came out of other parties to join one of freedom and humanity, which should make equal laws for all men without geographical discrimination, and it has in all times and in every struggle, in peace and in war, been on the side of the nation, of liberty and progressive civilization. DOMESTIC NEWS.

FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS

First Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, June 18,

A bill to correct the dates of the commissions of certain officers of the army, which advances Major William Myers of the Quartermaster Department on the army register, was passed. Yeas, 40; nays, 8

Mr Chandler of Mich., presented a memorial from citizens of that State against any reciprocity treaty with Canada. Referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Mr. Scott called up the report of the Conference Comm. Ree on the anxiety bill. Considerable debate ensued relative to the action of the Committee on the Judiciary, who, in the Collector at San Francisco and the insertion for a Collector at Philadelphia at an increased salary, but no action was taken.

The bill providing for the payment of awards of the Southern Claims Commission was brought up, but laid aside informally and the morning report was considered.

Mr. Howe spoke against the abolition of the moiety system and said that this bill made the Revenue laws less efficacious than heretofore. He would like some one to tell him why the salary of the Collector of New York was fixed at $12,000, when the Secretary of the Treasury worked for $8,000? Certainly the responsibility of the Collector was not greater than that of the Secretary.

Mr. Conkling said that one reason why the salary of the Collector of New York had been fixed at the sum named, was that he had enormous pecuniary responsibility and gave very heavy bonds. Half a million a day was but an ordinary sum to pass through his hands. He was responsible not only for himself, but also for his subordinates. There was not an Insurance Company in the land that would assume the risk for which that officer is liable for the amount paid to him annually.

Mr. Howe said that the Treasurer of the United States and Assistant Treasurer had pecuniary liabilities equal to that of the Collector, yet they were not get so much salary.

Mr. Carpenter said that this bill from the beginning to the end was to favor smugglers.

Mr. Carpenter replied to what he considered some strictures upon him by a newspaper.

The report of the Conference Committee was then agreed to without a division.

The chair then called up the unfinished business, it being the bill to pay the awards made by the Southern Claims Commission.

Mr. Frelinghuysen moved to lay aside that bill and proceed to the consideration of the bill reported to forfeit the lands of the United States in Utah.

The Senate bill to provide a government for the District of Columbia was taken from the table and read by title.

Mr. Allison gave notice that he would ask the Senate to take up and dispose of it to-day as soon as the Southern Claims bill was disposed.

Mr. Conkling called up the House bill directing the Secretary of the Treasury to report upon the necessity of a public building at Brooklyn, N. Y., and estimate the cost of the same. Passed.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill for the payment of awards made by the Southern Claims Commission, the pending question being on the amendment proposed by the Committee on Claims to strike out the appropriation of $45,161 to pay the claim of Mr Bailey of Louisiana

Mr. Wright, from the Conference Committee on the Currency bill, made a report which he said had the concurrence of every member of the committee of both houses. He would not ask its consideration now, but gave notice that he would call it up immediately after the expiration of the morning hour to-morrow

The Senate took up the River and Harbor Appropriation bill. The amendment of the House to encourage the establishment of public marine schools was concurred in, and the bill was passed.

The bill to provide for a government of the District of Columbia was taken up, and after the rejection of an amendment offered by Mr. Sargent, we read a third time and passed—Mr Sargent being the only one who voted nay.

The Senate went into Executive session, after which the bill to relieve Wm. A. Jones of Alabama of political disabilities was passed.

The joint resolution authorizing the Postmaster General to perfect the title to certain real estate obtained from John W. Norton of New York, a defaulter to the Postal money order bureau, passed.

The bill to fix the time for election of Representatives to the 44th Congress from Mississippi passed.

Adjourned.

HOUSE.

Mr. Marshall of Illinois introduced a bill to retire national bank circulation, restore prosperity to the country, and provide for the early resumption of specie payments. Referred to the Committee on Banking.

Mr. Garfield of Ohio, from the Conference Committee on the Legislative Appropriation bill, made a report which was read and explained briefly by him. There were one hundred and ten differences, he said, between the House and Senate when the bill went to the Conference Committee. On twenty-four the Senate receded absolutely, and on forty-five both houses agreed with amendments. He believed that on the whole a fair result had been reached. The Senate was opposed to a reduction of the judicial force in the department to the extent fixed by the House, and the House conferees were satisfied that in some instances they had cut too deeply. No one had given way choosingly. The reduction made by the conference amounted to $127,000; that is, the bill appropriates now $117,000 less than was in it when it came from the Senate. The total amount now appropriated by the bill is $31,000,000.

After a discussion as to the status of the Congressional Printer the report was agreed to.

A bill was passed requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to report at the next session of Congress on the necessity of a public building at Brooklyn, and the estimated cost thereof, including the site.

A bill for the reappointment of the Legislature Assembly of Idaho Territory was passed.

Mr. Butler of Massachusetts asked the unanimous consent to have the Senate Civil Rights bill from the Speaker's table and referred to the Judiciary Committee, remarking that it could not be reported back this session.

Mr. Beck of Kentucky—Let that be a part of the orders.

Mr. Butler—Having said it, it is as good as done.

Mr Ramey of S. C.—I shall object to that order.

Mr Butler remarked that he would report the Civil Rights bill before the Judiciary Committee and ask to have to-morrow evening set apart for debate on it.

Mr. Ward of Illinois objected.

Mr. Shanks of Ind. moved to suspend the rules and appoint a Commission of three to investigate the Customs and Chicksaw matter, and enter into an agreement with them relative to the status of the colored people there

Mr. Cessna of Pa., moved to suspend rules and pass a bill relative to equitable and legal rights of persons in possession of certain lands and improvements thereon in California, and to provide a modification and determine their rights. He explained that it had reference to property of Juan San Jose belonging Mrs. Fremont and others which had been taken possession of by the military authorities and it involved some $200,000.

Mr. Osborn of Ind. said it involved some $600,000. He had asked the Judges of the City Court, Military Affairs had made a unanimous report against it. The motion to suspend the rules was not seconded.

Mr. Goode of Massachusetts moved to suspend the rules and pass a bill granting ten pieces of cannon for a monument in commemoration of the battle of Lexington, the 19th of April, 1775. Agreed, to.

Mr. Cook of Georgia moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill extending the limitation for public buildings at Atlanta, Ga., to $250,000.

Mr. Garfield of Ohio called for the yeas and nays, agreeing in an undersea that they might as well break in one side of the reasoning at once.

The motion was rejected; yeas 140, nays 96—less than two-thirds in the affirmative.

Mr O'Neill of Pa. moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill to transfer to the Fairmount Park Association of Philadelphia lately condemned bronze cannon for an equestrian statue of Major General Meade. Agreed to.

Mr. Hooper of Mass moved to suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill authorizing the transfer of gold coin bars from the assay office in New York to the sub-treasury. Agreed to.

Mr. E. H. Roberts made a conference report on the moiety bill, which was agreed to

Mr. Wilson of Iowa moved to adjourn. Agreed to, 104 to 83, and the House at 3 20 adjourned.

PROFESSOR WAYLAND'S ADDRESS.

Professor Wayland, President of the Board of Visitors, in his address to the graduating class, concluded as follows:—"The age of chivalry is now passed. The highest types of heroism now are among us. The noblest knight who sat at the round table of King Arthur, the stoutest crusader who hewed his way through the serried hosts of Saladin, has found his peer in many a brave soldier fighting for the institution and the Union; who, whether leading a forlorn hope or languishing in a military hospital, or breathing his last in a fever-haunted prison, displayed a courage as determined, a temper of self-sacrifice as devoted, and a spirit of consecration as pure, as ever inspired the defenders of the cross or guided the search for the holy grail. Not, then, in the border land between fable and history, nor yet in the more authentic annals of the middle ages should you seek motives for encouragement and models for imitation, but among your countrymen of your own time, many of them alumni of your Alma Mater, and all of them members of your chosen profession."

LEFT ASHORE

BY THASSIA TIBBCOTT WOFFORD

Softly it stole up out of the sea,
The day time, by right my due to me,
Slowly into the star sown grey,
Dim and dappled, it waned away.
Who would have thought such fire for light
Would lurk in the heart of the dull night?
Who would have dreamed it was there because
Pallid pines from the rim sat at leaning ease?
Made my fancy the sun and the sea
Oh, well I and slowly came up from the sea
The day that brought very life to me?

Glad was I at the open door
While my footfall lingered along the floor,
For there brought hands in that dawn of day
A rose to the silent resting place
Those sweet months I kept and kissed
As the gold and rose and sea mist
Of the eastern sky was round us shed,
And those dusky happy faces dyed
In the tinting hues—and he went too—
And lightly the wind that morning blew

Many a time I had one and all
Gone at before to the deep-sea haul,
Many a time comes wing back
Against the tide of the Hermuse,
With shining freight, and a reddening sail
Flapping loose in the idle gale,
While over them flashed the evening glow,
With stars above and with stars below,
Till I stood laughing, a week gone dim,
Home and the warm shore making be.

Then why that day, as I watched the boat,
Did I so shiver the air to shake note
That I could not tell from deep to deep,
Flying along in the eager haste
Of the keel and the fleet of the waste,
Far I brought the heart of the grey sea's grave,
Down to the only home
That was all wealth and warning of crying

And I could not know the cost
Of the treasure I had lost
And the treasure I had won
While I sought the Waters whose
Were the wealth of the world
Or the gain of men with money,
But I knew with holy
That I had come into the
Of the kingdom of God and prayed,
And I was all unaware inside

Of the wealth was home
Of the minute gain
Of the heart and the
Of the only love
Of the wealth of crying

ANCIENT AND MODERN EGYPT.

Egypt is supposed to have been built as the tombs of kings. Two of them were known to have small rooms far in their depths, but the third was thought to be a solid mass of masonry because no entrance could be discovered. Belzoni searched for thirty days, until he found the entrance and crept into the secret, sacred chamber.

Returning to England he took with him drawings of the most perfect of the Egyptian tombs. It had several apartments adorned with magnificent sculpture and paintings. In London he made a complete model of the place and its decorations and exhibited it publicly, together with many genuine antiquities. The exhibition was crowded, for it was something new and strange. Horace Smith, a popular author then wrote a poetical "Address to the Mummy at Belzoni's Exhibition." It is in many reading-books, I think, and if you have the "Library of Poetry and Song" you will find it on page 512 of that work.

That was in 1821. Since then mummies have become quite common. Mr. Barnum recently has one at least in his museum. Somebody has one of his travelling show. They are partners of his travelling show. They are pursuit very pleasant to look at, but it is a strange thought that each of those dark, withered figures was once a man or woman, thus lived and moved in the old cities of which only the mere covers and the ruins are left.

Belzoni the circus actor had been long forgotten, but Belzoni the Egyptian traveler and discoverer grew widely famous. His native city, Padua, struck a medal in his honor, and his adopted country, England was proud of him.

He lodged for new fields and new triumphs of exploration. He determined to go to Timbuctoo in Africa, but on his way he was taken sick and died near the Bight of Benin, being about forty-five years old.—Illustrated Weekly.

ANALYSIS OF FERTILIZERS.—We are much pleased to note a "Report on the Analysis and Estimation of Value of ten different Commercial Fertilizers for the Georgia State Agricultural Society," by H. C. White, Professor of Agricultural Chemistry in the Georgia State College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts. This report, following the example introduced into the country by Professor Johnson, chemist of the Connecticut Board of Agriculture, estimates the relative value of the different fertilizers, by computing, by a scale of prices assumed to be fair for that market, the values of the fertilizing ingredients of which they are found by analysis to contain. The assumed scale of values is quite liberal to the dealers, and in certain points, as in the discussion of the relative values of different potash salts and of soluble and reverted phosphoric acid, the reports is open to objection. But a very valuable point is gained in that the principle of the valuation of fertilizers upon the basis of their chemical composition is set forth, and the analyses are made in behalf of the farmers, and in the interest of the State Agricultural Society, by the chemist of the State College. The farmers of Georgia appear to be taking a step in the right direction to secure good fertilizers, and their agricultural college is doing very much for them in this matter.

The analyses of fertilizers, for the purposes of control of the trade in these articles, are becoming year by year more common, and the necessity better understood. In the experiment stations, Maine, Germany, the Connecticut Station, and the Pennsylvania State College, this work is done annually and has been increasing until now it is over one thousand. In the laboratory of Professor Voelcker, of London, chemist of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, where analysis of fertilizers are made for members of the society and others, the amount of this work has grown to such a degree that five or six assistant chemists are employed, who analyze about two thousand samples per year.

Expensive, as decisive as it is costly, both in Europe and in the United States has shown that the only means for realizing the true value in commercial fertilizers, and preventing immense frauds, is that the buyers know the quality of the goods they purchase, that this can be determined only by chemical analysis, and that complete security must be sought in analyses made by parties working in the interest of the buyer.

In this connection it will be interesting to notice an account given by Dr. Baerecker, director of the experiment station at Halle, in Prussia, of the fertilizers in the Vienna exposition. The principal articles exhibited were, potash salts from the mines at Stassfurth, in Germany, phosphorites from Europe and America, superphosphates, guanos, animal preparations, and Obijt saltpetre. The artificial fertilizers were mostly of German and English manufacture. The German wares were in general unmixed, and were accompanied by strict guarantees of their composition, which fact corresponds with the German practice of buying fertilizers containing known qualities—potash, phosphoric acid or nitrogen—separately, and mixing them at discretion. The English fertilizers, on the other hand, were generally mixtures of these various fertilizing materials and were sold as "ready fertilizers," "patent manures," etc., thus rendering the control upon the contents of fertilizing ingredients more difficult. From a comparison of the English and German wares Dr. Maercker is impressed with the idea that the German farmers nudge more rationally than the English as to what each individual crop needs, and with justifiable pride attributes this to the study of agriculture in the German agricultural schools and universities.
